

Hot Doc

When some of the best athletes in the world get injured, many of them look to Cincy for their surgical repairs. Timothy Kremchek, M.D. — the medical director and chief orthopedic physician for the Cincinnati Reds, and a key stakeholder in Beacon Orthopaedics & Sports Medicine — has helped keep many of America's stars on the field, including major league baseball players Ken Griffey Jr., Aaron Boone, B.J. Ryan and Milton Bradley.

John Pepper

CO-CHAIR, NATIONAL UNDERGROUND
FREEDOM CENTER

He's not as visibly active here as some might hope for, but when it comes to business impact and connections, the very name of the former P&G CEO still carries influential weight.

George Schaefer Jr.

CHAIRMAN,
FIFTH THIRD
BANK

He's no longer CEO, but Schaefer still carries considerable clout, in his company and in the community.

Power Family: The Neyers

Everywhere you turn, the Neyer family seems to have a hand in major commercial real estate development, with projects such as Columbia Square, Cornerstone at Norwood, Kenwood Crossing, Keystone Parke, Linden Pointe on the Lateral, Michigan Terrace and Red Bank Crossing II. Joseph Neyer started it all with a carpentry construction company in 1894. Family firms now include AL Neyer Inc. (David F. Neyer, CEO; William L. Neyer, executive VP; James T. Neyer, VP), Neyer Properties (Dan Neyer, president), Neyer Construction Inc. (John R. Neyer, president; Tina L. Neyer, VP), Neyer Holdings Corp., focused on merchant banking and real estate (Tom Neyer Jr., chairman, CEO and former Hamilton County commissioner), and Neyer Management.

James Wiseman

VP EXTERNAL
AFFAIRS, TOYOTA
MANUFACTURING
NORTH AMERICA

With roots in the Bluegrass State, including a stint as CEO of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, Wiseman holds the key community-influence position at the Erlanger headquarters of what is now the No. 1 automaker in the world. And his influence stretches wide and deep across the Ohio River.

James Wainscott

CHAIRMAN,
PRESIDENT &
CEO, AK STEEL

He survived a months-long strike and brought West Chester Township its first corporate headquarters of a Fortune 500 company.

Biggest Comeback: Roxanne Qualls

She was mayor when the position was mostly ceremonial. Now back on City Council, insiders say she wants a turn as a mayor that now has some real power. Mark Mallory is watching her every move.
